First Cotton Bloom Reaches Times Office

The first cotton bloom of the present season was brought to the Times office Monday by J. E. Strickland Jr., living on Route 3, who brought two specimens—one freshly open and the other ready to drop off a boll as large as a bird egg. All of this indicates that Mr. Strickland is an early stirrer and that his crop of cotton will possibly be coming to market within the next sixty days.

That's Point 6 of the National 8-Point Dairy Program. The U. S. Department of Agriculture suggests to dairymen that changes often can be made to save labor and speed up chores. Your County Agricultural Agent will be glad to help you find short cuts.

"Efficiency Pays"

Yes... adopt labor-saving methods wherever you can. But never, never spare effort to keep your utensils and stables clean. Cleanliness is of top importance in producing high-quality milk. Keep utensils and stables clean. Use proper milking methods. Cool milk quickly... an excellent way to do this is to fill a half-barrel or similar container with cool, fresh water and set the milk can in it. Never mix night and morning milk. Do these things and you'll find your milk profits mounting.

Foremost Dairies is seeking to provide you with a dependable year-around market for your milk. But remember, we must have good milk, CLEAN milk—because Foremost milk goes to mothers, babies, fighting men and war workers. Send your milk, in large or small quantities, to Foremost Dairies.

What Is Emergency

WHETHER OR NOT there was justification for the present assembling of the legislature into special session, is being argued with vigor and more or less venom. If followed to a final analysis, it will be noted that the division of thought on the matter is almost exactly parallel with the political alignments of the state. We hesitate to mention names, but most of those who read these lines will understand who are the recognized heads of factions.

Those who recognize that the state can be best served by a continuance of Ellis Arnall in the governor's office justify the calling of the session as an "emergency" within the meaning of the law. Those who favor another recognized leader and wish his return to power, are vehement in their denunciation of the special session. Briefly, these are the divisions, only with slight exceptions—that smaller element of in-betweeners who have believed that their own personal ambitions would be served by a retention of the recent conditions which exclude Ellis Arnall as a chief factor in the forthcoming governor's race.

As to these individuals, we shall not here be specific, but are emboldened to say that there have been some small forces which, brought into prominence by the reflected light of leaders of vastly greater capacity, have imagined that they themselves were men of important calibre. So we are going to keep in mind the fact that the matter is now one of age-grinding. Those who would exclude Ellis Arnall from the possibility of further service to the state as governor, either have ambitions for themselves or for another to whose leadership they are adherents.

As to the objection to the convening of the legislature on the ground that it was not justified by the term "emergency," that is mere quibbling. The situation is not one of recent development, but to be sure, that condition had admittedly existed since the change of the constitution which excluded a governor from the right to succeed himself. That law was enacted, possibly, for political reasons; it may have served well at the time, as to that we are not now concerned—but the danger of the law has only now become apparent.

Noah Webster, the man who knows language, defines "emergency" as "a sudden or unexpected appearance." That word "appearance" is the gist of the whole matter—the danger of the existing law has suddenly "appeared," and to that extent developed into an "emergency." And the question of whether or not the people of Georgia are being properly served, will be answered by the voters when they go to the ballot box in August to pass upon the proposed change of the restricting measure.

MRS. HUGHES TO DIRECT THE LEEFIELD SCHOOL

Mrs. F. W. Hughes, who has been head of the English department and librarian in the Brooklet schools for a number of years, will be principal of the Leefield junior school for the coming year. The Leefield community is active in the school interest. A wide-awake Parent-Teacher Association such as Leefield has, with experienced teachers elected for next year's faculty, makes in all a promising school for another year.

W. E. MILLS

Funeral services were held for W. E. Mills Friday, May 18, at 4:00 o'clock from the Methodist church of Statesboro, conducted by Rev. L. E. Williams, pastor, assisted by Rev. O. B. Rustin. Burial was in East Side cemetery.

Mr. Mills was born in 1870. He came to Bulloch county in 1908 and was a farmer for many years until in later years he moved to Statesboro and made his home.

Mr. Mills lost his wife last November, since which time he had made his home with his children. His health had been failing for some few months but he had only been sick four weeks before his death.

Mr. Mills was a Mason of long standing and a member of the South Georgia Methodist Conference. Surviving are four children—two daughters, Mrs. Ezra Brannen and Mrs. A. D. Edwards, Statesboro; two sons, J. B. Mills, Statesboro, and Woodrow Mills, Savannah; also sixteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear father,
E. L. HENDRIX,
who passed away nine years ago today, May 30, 1936.
'Tis sad but true, we wonder why
So quick you had to die.
More precious than silver and gold Your memory in our hearts is still untold.
We miss you most who loved you best.
God only knows the tears we shed
At the end of nine long years.
CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father,
ALVA D. TURNER,
who passed away June 3rd, 1944.
Just a year ago today
Since our loved one passed away.
We know he is waiting at the Golden Gate,
Where Jesus will take him at an early day.
Some people don't know the meaning of a home bright and gay Until the Heavenly Father comes and takes a loved one away.
But we and our dear loved one were thankful of a home and love, And that will be continued when we meet in Heaven above.
Sometimes we are very lonesome for the one God took away,
But we know we will be together again some day.
EUNICE TANNER TURNER
AND ANN.

MEN OVER THIRTY
GET DEFERMENT

Seventy-Five Hundred Men
In Georgia Will Be Given
A Review of Their Status

Approximately 7,500 Georgians will be affected by the new selective service order requiring a review of the status of all men thirty years of age or over who are in "useful" occupations, the state selective service director, Col. James N. Keelin Jr., has disclosed.

He quickly added, however, that not all men thirty years old and older would be deferred from military service by this order.

"Men thirty and over who volunteer or who are delinquent (failing to keep in contact with their draft boards), or who are not in useful occupations or who leave jobs for which they are deferred will continue to be taken into military service," Colonel Keelin said.

The chief difference between the old policy and the newly announced policy, said Keelin, is this: Under the old rules a man had to be a "necessary" employee in an activity in support of the national health, safety, or interest, or an activity in war production, or in an agricultural occupation or endeavor essential to war effort; under the new policy he has to be merely regularly engaged in such occupation. This change affects the age group thirty through thirty-three.

Local boards will review all cases of men thirty years old and over to see if they meet the new requirement, the state draft chief continued. If they are merely engaged in an activity necessary to the national health, safety, or interest, or in war production, or in agriculture, the local boards will reopen their cases and reclassify them even though an order to report for induction has been issued. Particular consideration will be given to fathers.

Keelin said emphasis for meeting the manpower needs for the armed forces must necessarily now be placed on those registrants 18-29.

While draft calls are expected to be reduced about twenty-five per cent in a few months, there is a strong possibility that most registrants of this age group (17-29) with occupational deferments will eventually have to be taken in order to provide the necessary replacements for servicemen who are being discharged on the point system after long and faithful service.

The new regulations also require the local boards to review the cases of 4-F registrants under twenty-six years of age to determine if they are now qualified for service.

It is expected that this new draft change coupled with war plant outlets should free older men to replace those 18-29 with occupational deferments.

Robertson Returns To Attend College Closing

Among the former students of Teachers College who came to attend the closing exercises during the past few days, was Harry Robertson, of Waycross, who has been in service since June, 1943, more than a year of that time overseas. During his service he was in the Mediterranean theater and served as an officer aboard a Navy LST. He has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs.
Harry Robertson Sr., at Daytona Beach, Fla., and his grandmother, Mrs. Henry Williams, at Waycross.

He graduated from Teachers College with the class of 1943. While there he was editor of the college publica-

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear mother, MRS. NANCY SHEFFIELD, who passed away three years ago today, May 29, 1942.
Gone is the dear one we loved so dear,
She was always faithful, full of cheer.
Tis sad but true, we wonder why
So quick, so sudden you had to die;
But God, who knoweth all things best Ceased your pain and gave you rest.
We miss you most who loved you best.
May God grant you eternal rest.
